Program Overview

The B.S. in special education at Winthrop University is designed to prepare individuals who are seeking initial certification in special education grades K-12. Candidates have two options for concentration: the learning disabilities and emotional disabilities track or the mental disabilities and severe disabilities track. A unique feature of this program is that courses required by South Carolina for elementary education certification (Grades 2 – 6) are imbedded into the special education program. Graduates of the special education program have the option of adding on elementary education certification by successfully completing the elementary education Praxis II.
