GOLD

On behalf of the Alumni Association and Student Alumni Council, we would like to welcome the Class of 2028! We hope you find this book to be a helpful reference tool as you find your home at Winthrop. While we primarily work on behalf of Winthrop alumni, students who have already graduated, it is also our mission to aid in the preservation of Winthrop's treasures and traditions. From the moment you set foot on campus to when you walk across the stage at Commencement, we want to make sure we are there for you as a resource. So remember, make new friendships, make memories, and leave your mark on the Winthrop legacy. Enjoy your time at Winthrop—we look forward to seeing you around campus!

Limited Edition

The greatest object of your life should be to guard carefully against forming anything but right habits of thought of feeling, of action—to store your minds and hearts with high ideals and right aims and motives and purposes.

WINTHROP'S FOUNDING PRESIDENT

Welcome to the Winthrop family! As a proud Winthrop alumnus, I can personally attest that life-changing experiences happen here. I sincerely hope Winthrop transforms your future like it did mine!

Now into my third year as president, I want you to know that you are arriving at a fantastic time. We will soon launch our new strategic plan, Winthrop: United in Excellence, that will serve as our road map for the next few years. It's an ambitious plan, one that will allow us to continue to build upon our tradition of excellence. You'll hear more about new initiatives during your time here, but please know we're excited about how the plan will catapult Winthrop toward a bright future.

As you embark on your Winthrop journey, I want to offer you two pieces of advice:

1. Get involved! Civic engagement, research, campus involvement, leadership opportunities, and more than 100 clubs and organizations await you. There's no better way to plug into the excitement!
2. Visit our newly dedicated Morgan-Holcombe Alumni Center at the Stewart House. Experience Winthrop's astounding history through exhibits, special moments, collections, and more. This impressive place will poignantly tie you to our humble beginnings as we focus on the road ahead.

I'm thrilled you're here, and I look forward to getting to know you. Come chat with me during student office hours or say hello if you see me out and about or walking our dog, Cooper, on campus (he seems to steer us to Starbucks a lot!) Let's have a great year!

Traditions often take the form of rituals or events, but in their essence, traditions are stories and experiences that connect a large group of people across generations.

We all become part of a community through the stories and experiences that unite us, regardless of race, gender and creed.

Winthrop has a long history of traditions, and each entering freshman class has the opportunity to build upon them.

This book, The Garnet and Gold, presents you with the opportunity to become aware of Winthrop's history and shape its future.

Welcome to Winthrop University. We are excited to have you as a part of our vibrant and unique community.

The Winthrop Alumni Association represents more than 60,000 Winthrop alumni worldwide. Our Association engages alumni representing a wide range of diversity in careers and life experiences but have in common with you the experience of attending Winthrop University. We trust that you will find your Winthrop experience challenging yet fulfilling, just as we did when we walked in your shoes as students. We stand ready to support you in your Winthrop journey through mentoring and support.

As Winthrop students, when you see an opportunity to meet and network with alumni, take advantage of that. Do not hesitate to make lifelong connections to groups or individuals who may assist with your undergraduate endeavors or help you navigate your career. Winthrop may be your temporary home, but it will provide you with friends and family you will cherish for the rest of your life.

Welcome to a new beginning. I hope you take advantage of all that Winthrop has to offer. I look forward to meeting you and wish you all a very successful first year.

Winthrop Ever Stand,

President, Winthrop Alumni Association

Alumni

To honor the traditions and values of Winthrop University through the engagement of alumni worldwide.

The Winthrop Alumni Association is a non-profit organization that serves more than 60,000 alumni, the university and students. Members of the association promote the growth and progress of the university, encourage loyalty among former students, strengthen tradition, and engage prospective students to attend Winthrop. The Executive Board serves as the governing body of all Winthrop alumni and oversees association business. All active alumni are eligible to serve on the Executive Board.

Graduates of Winthrop are automatically members of the association. A student regularly enrolled at Winthrop for at least one year who does not graduate becomes a non-graduate alumna/us, while students who completed less than one year may request approval for non-graduate alumni status. There are no annual dues or special requirements for becoming a member. All it takes is dedication to actively stay in touch with the university.

You cannot spend four years of your life in contact with your fellow students in the daily presence of men and women of character and culture, in easy access to a well selected library of books, without being a better citizen and person of more or less culture; and having used the best means yet devised of enabling one to live a satisfactory life. This is what I think a college education can do for you.

WINTHROP'S SECOND PRESIDENT

THE WINTHROP LEGACY

Winthrop Through the Years

Winthrop University has been an educational leader in South Carolina for more than 135 years. In 1886, David Bancroft Johnson, a dedicated and gifted superintendent of schools, successfully petitioned Boston philanthropist Robert C. Winthrop and the Peabody Fund for seed money to form a school whose mission would be the education of women as teachers. As the “Winthrop Training School,” Johnson’s fledgling institution opened its doors to 21 students in Columbia, S.C., using a borrowed, one-room building. Because of its important role, Winthrop soon received state assistance and moved to its permanent Rock Hill home in 1895.

Over time, Winthrop became one of the premier women’s colleges in the region and expanded its mission to become a comprehensive institution offering degrees in a variety of disciplines. The institution diversified its class ranks by extending its educational offerings to minorities in 1964 and becoming fully coeducational in 1974.

Winthrop assumed university designation in 1992 and has achieved national recognition in pursuit of its goal to be one of the finest comprehensive universities in the country.

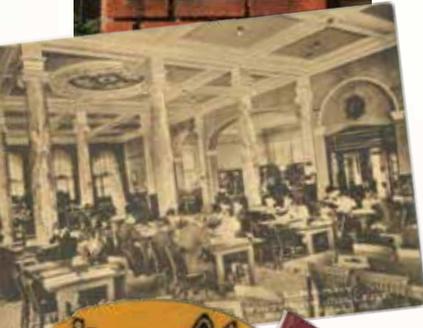

Winthrop has changed dramatically since its beginnings, growing from a single classroom to a comprehensive university of distinction. Winthrop's historic main campus is a setting of exceptional beauty, as is the nearby Winthrop University Lake Area, Recreational and Research Complex. Over the years, Winthrop has grown from an initial class of 21 in 1886 to a student body of nearly 5,000.

Always Winthrop

In its more than 135-year history, Winthrop has undergone several name changes; however, the word "Winthrop" has been incorporated in each name change. You may note signage on buildings or other structures that reflects the different designations. The names and corresponding years are indicated below:

- ▶ Winthrop Training School, 1886
- ▶ South Carolina Industrial and Winthrop Normal College, 1891
- ▶ Winthrop Normal and Industrial College of South Carolina, 1893
- ▶ Winthrop College (The South Carolina College for Women), 1920
- ▶ Winthrop College, 1974
- ▶ Winthrop University, 1992

Notable Figures in Winthrop's History

Take a look at some of the pioneers who shaped Winthrop's history and traditions.

Robert C. Winthrop (1809-1894)

Benefactor and namesake of Winthrop University, Robert C. Winthrop, as the chairman of the Peabody Trust for Southern Education, enabled David Bancroft Johnson to obtain a $1,500 grant to start a teacher training institution in Columbia, S.C. in 1886. Winthrop gave Johnson $50 out of his own pocket to establish a library at the school, and he continued to donate $50 every year, as well as books, until his death in 1894.

David Bancroft Johnson (1856-1928)

Winthrop's founder and first president, D. B. Johnson, served as president from 1886 until his death in 1928. His determination to establish a college for women in South Carolina impressed those in the political and educational worlds alike. He was the driving force behind Winthrop for 42 years, and many buildings still in use today were built during his tenure. Without his quest for excellence, Winthrop would not be the school it is today. In 2017, Johnson was inducted into the South Carolina Hall of Fame for his outstanding contributions to the state.

Cynthia Plair Roddey '67 (1940-)

Cynthia Plair Roddey became the first African-American student to be admitted to Winthrop in 1964. Roddey was 24 years old when she applied for enrollment in Winthrop's graduate program. Roddey earned a master's degree in teaching in 1967. She served as the director of the library at Clinton Junior College in Rock Hill and continues to participate in Winthrop University activities.

Arnetta Gladden Mackey '67 (1947-2009), Delores Johnson Hurt '68 (1946-) and Sue Frances Meriwether Steed '67 (1946-)

Arnetta Gladden Mackey and Delores Johnson Hurt were the first two African-American undergraduate students to attend Winthrop in the fall of 1964. Mackey graduated in 1967 with a degree in biology. She later worked at a chemical company, retiring in management after 33 years. Hurt graduated with a French degree in 1968 and later earned a master's degree in broadcast journalism. She worked as a news reporter, business owner, and taught journalism and French before retiring. Sue Frances Meriwether Steed '67 was the first African-American student to earn a degree at Winthrop. She transferred in the fall of 1964 from Tennessee Agricultural & Industrial State University. She earned a biology degree and enjoyed a 39-year teaching career before retiring.

Walter H. Schrader Jr. '69 (1913-2005)

Since 1898, men have been allowed to attend summer courses at Winthrop and during the 1960s, they attended evening classes as well. However, the college's charter did not permit Winthrop to award men degrees. Walter H. Schrader Jr. completed all the requirements for a Master of Arts in Teaching, sued to have the charter changed and became the first man to receive a Winthrop degree in 1969. Winthrop became fully co-educational in 1974.

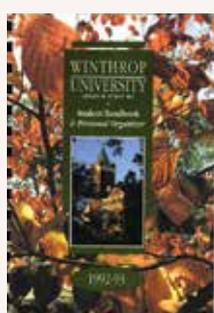

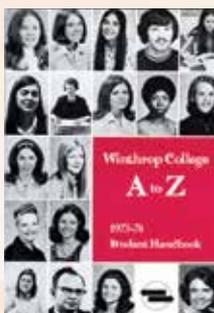

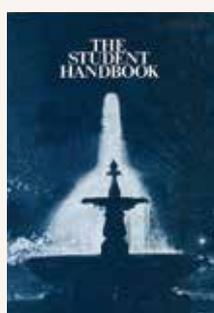

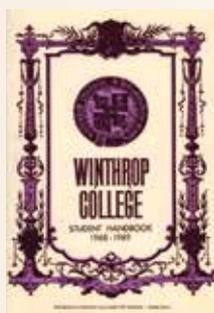

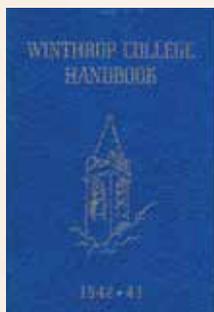

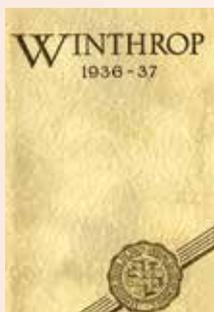

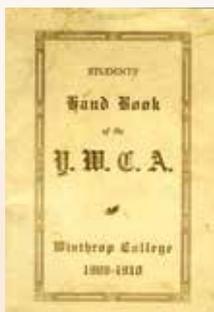

Martha Kime Piper (1931-1988)

In June 1986, Martha Kime Piper was named the eighth president of Winthrop, becoming the first female college president in the Carolinas as well as Winthrop's first female president. During her tenure, Winthrop became the nation's first college to sign a NAACP fair share agreement encouraging the promotion of minorities and the use of minority businesses, created a school of visual and performing arts, and had more than 20 buildings added to the National Register of Historic Places. Piper died in office in 1988.

The inspiration for The Garnet and Gold is the student handbook first created by Winthrop's Young Women's Christian Association (Y.W.C.A.) in 1902.

Freshmen received this pocket-sized booklet before the beginning of the academic term, allowing them to become familiar with Winthrop officials, the Y.W.C.A., the student government, college customs and traditions, and campus regulations. During the first weeks of school, freshmen were required to take an exam on its contents. From the handbook freshmen could also quickly reference the words to the alma mater, meal time blessings, the names of class officers, and the bell schedule. Some editions of the handbook even provided students with a few pages to fill in one's class schedule and a place to jot down notes.

Though first created by the Y.W.C.A., the handbook has been sponsored by a variety of campus organizations through the years with the common tradition of students taking the role of editors. In the late 1980s the Division of Student Life took charge of producing the official student handbook, which gave rise to the more policy-oriented manual Winthrop students know today.

Did You Know?

Enjoy these fun facts that you may not know about Winthrop's history.

Olympian Lucile (Ludy) Godbold was a Winthrop alumna. Lucile graduated in 1919 and competed in the 1922 Women's International Track Meet where she won six medals.

From 1895 to 1907 students only had one day to enjoy their Christmas break.

Winthrop may have kept the girls in Rock Hill, but there were plenty of Christmas preparations on campus. The dorms and the Main Building parlors had Christmas trees set up for the girls to decorate. The dining hall's overhead steam pipes wore garlands of greenery. Christmas carols were sung in chapel all week.

There was a pool in Tillman, and students were required to swim one lap before graduating. The one lap requirement continued into the 1970s, long after the Peabody Pool replaced the Tillman Pool.

There is a bathroom in the President's House specifically built for Eleanor Roosevelt's visit to campus in 1940. First Lady Eleanor Roosevelt appeared as an added feature of the Winthrop College Artist Course series to speak about social issues that plague young people.

The first president of Winthrop and his wife are buried beneath the floor of the Little Chapel. David Bancroft Johnson married Winthrop graduate, Mai Rutledge Smith, Class of 1898, in 1902. D.B. Johnson was first interred on the front lawn of campus. His body was moved in 1936 when the Little Chapel was relocated to campus from its original home in Columbia.

Withers/W.T.S. Building used to be a school for kindergarten through high school students. In fact, the Winthrop Training School served as a training opportunity for Winthrop education students. Today, Winthrop education students work with children in Macfeat Laboratory School housed in Withers.

There is a well on the front of campus. There is an artesian well on front campus that once provided water to the campus community. The water was stored in a 24,000 gallon tank located directly under Tillman's bell tower. The brick structure that encloses the well was constructed in 1906.

The earliest documentation of international students at Winthrop were students from Chile in the 1920s. Winthrop has hosted international students from more than 40 different countries throughout its many years.

Johnson Hall used to be the student activities building. Johnson Hall, named for founding president David Bancroft Johnson, was constructed with funds from oil magnate and philanthropist John D. Rockefeller, the YWCA, and the state legislature. Built in the Classical Revival style, it originally housed offices for students, the YWCA, and literary societies.

The Winthrop girls used to slide down the enclosed fire escapes on campus for fun.

President Woodrow Wilson's profession of faith was made in the Little Chapel. The Little Chapel was once part of the Columbia Theological Seminary, where Wilson's father was a professor. Wilson regularly attended services and became a member of the Presbyterian Church in the Little Chapel.

President Johnson only had one arm. At age 9, while crossing railroad tracks on the way home from school, Johnson was run down by a hand car loaded with rock. His arm was badly mangled and amputated to save his life.

Robert Mills designed both Winthrop's Little Chapel and the Washington Monument. You can visit the Robert Mills House in Columbia and see the original site of Winthrop's Little Chapel.

The D.B. Johnson Memorial Organ in Byrnes Auditorium is one of the largest and finest musical instruments in the South. Installed in 1955, it is now one of the last of its kind, an Aeolian-Skinner organ with tonal finishing by renowned organ designer G. Donald Harrison.

In 1909, Winthrop's enrollment exceeded that of the University of South Carolina and Clemson. Winthrop had 669 enrolled students, which was not only the largest educational institution in the state, but one of the largest in the South.

Soldiers lived on campus before Winthrop admitted the first male students in 1974. The U.S. Army Corps 41st College Training Detachment lived in Bancroft Hall during WWII. They took classes on campus from 1943-1944.

In the 1940s and 50s, when students wore uniforms, women were not allowed to wear pants on the front of campus.

The Little Chapel is the original classroom of Winthrop, and was moved brick by brick from its original home in Columbia to Rock Hill in 1936.

There are tunnels and pathways under Tillman. They were constructed for the pipes that were used to heat and cool campus.

Ida Jane Dacus Library is named for an alumna. Ida Jane Dacus, a Winthrop alumna, was the first professionally trained librarian in the state. She worked in Winthrop's Carnegie Library for over 40 years. The Dacus Library was constructed in 1969, four years after her death.

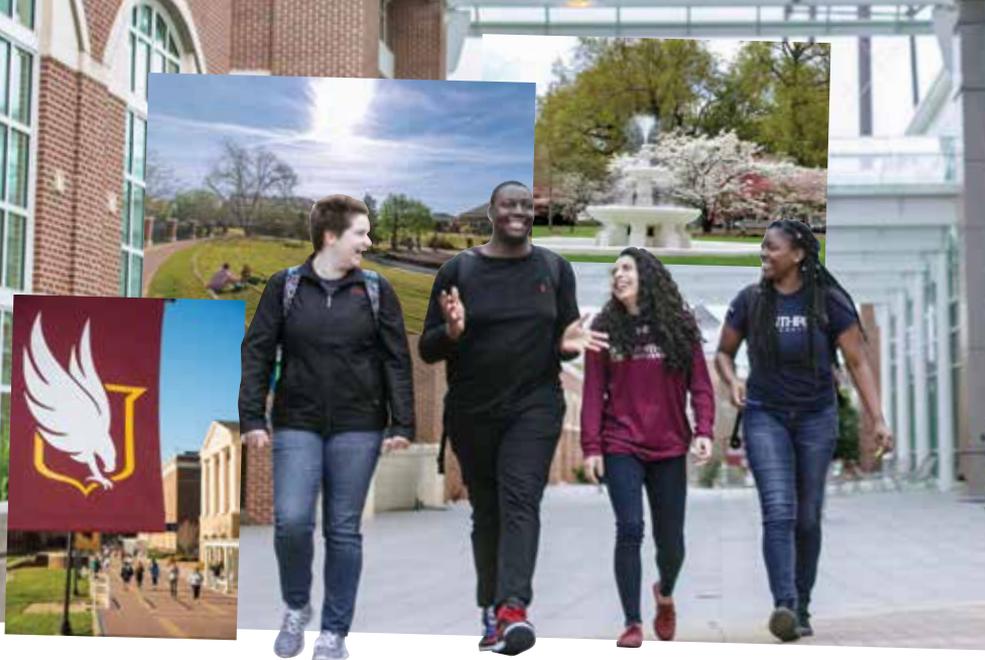

A former tradition among students was that underclassman could not walk up the front steps of Tillman. Only seniors had this privilege. This tradition was part of "Senior Week," which was the last week of school before Commencement. Underclassmen had to use the two side entrances; if they were caught using the front entrance during senior week they had to pay a 25 cent fine.

Although Winthrop has never had its own football team, Winthrop hosted the 1926 football game between Davidson and Presbyterian College. It ended in a win for Davidson 3-0.

Campus Treasures

Winthrop's distinctive history, culture and campus would be incomplete without these unique treasures that have become central to the character of the university.

Amphitheatre

The amphitheatre was excavated from a hillside over a creek bed in 1916. Located amid groves of trees that were originally part of Oakland Park in the 1890s, it is tucked away from the main pedestrian thoroughfares and now serves as a multi-purpose venue. The amphitheater was upgraded during fall 2010.

Chimes

The chimes were installed in the tower of Main Building, now known as Tillman Hall, in 1923. In early years, students received scholarships to play the chimes, which signaled class changes, awakened students, and started and closed chapel. Electronic chimes were purchased with student and alumni donations and installed during the 1970s.

Clock Tower

Among all the Winthrop treasures, nothing is more visible than the clock tower of Tillman Hall, which continues to serve as an icon for the university. The 151-foot high clock tower boasts a clock face, which uses the lettering "IIII" instead of the traditional Roman numeral "IV."

Founder's Bust

On April 25, 1987, a bronze bust of David Bancroft Johnson, created by sculptor Earline King of Winston-Salem, N.C., and architect Michael Gallis of the University of North Carolina at Charlotte, was dedicated on the front lawn of campus near the founder's original burial place. The sculpture was intended "to reflect the character of the man" who founded Winthrop and presided over it for 42 years, and was beloved by his "Winthrop daughters." The memorial was created from some 70 photographs of Johnson from early to old age provided by the Winthrop Archives. Those who view the sculpture believe it a likeness of the "mature" Johnson. In 2005, the bust was moved to the Little Chapel to be near Johnson's final resting place.

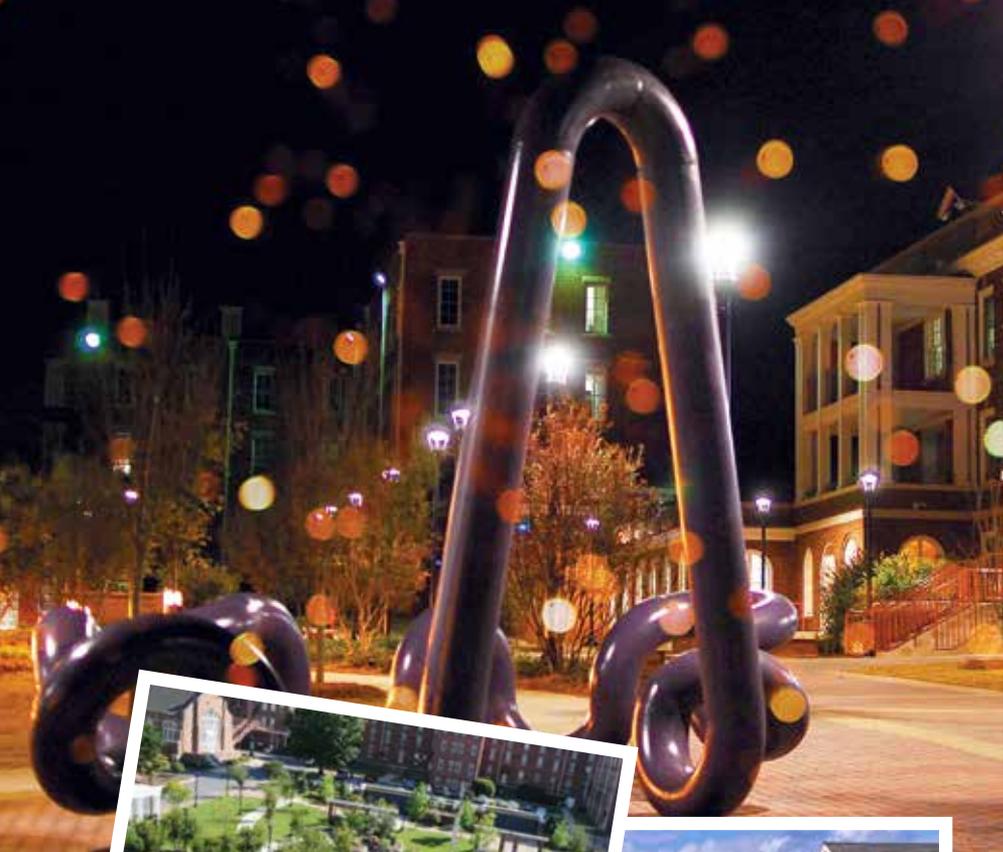

Magnolia Tree

The large magnolia tree standing in front of Tillman Hall has long been a fixture on the Winthrop campus. Though it sustained significant damage during Hurricane Hugo in September 1989, the tree continues to serve as an icon of Winthrop. In 2010 Trees SC named it a designated heritage tree for the community spirit it evokes.

Public Art

First President D.B. Johnson introduced Winthrop's emphasis on public art and was honored posthumously for his contributions with the Medal of Honor in the Arts in 2011. In the manner of institutional architecture at the turn of the century, Winthrop buildings also possess decorative elements that enhance the campus' distinct design. Today, Winthrop continues to advocate the importance of public art through an innovative program that gives fine arts and design students on-going opportunities to create and fabricate temporary and permanent works for the university's public spaces.

Recreation and Research Area/ “The Farm”

When Winthrop moved to Rock Hill in 1895, the campus was divided into separate pieces of land. The area now known as the Research and Recreational Complex operated as a farm and produced vegetables, fruit, milk, butter and meat, all which were used to prepare meals for students and faculty. Eventually, a decision was made to cease operations at the farm, and by 1958 the lake was constructed to provide a recreational area for students. However, due to the long history of this area as a working farm, the complex is still affectionately referred to as “the Farm.”

The President's Award for Academic Excellence

The President's Award for Academic Excellence is the university's highest student academic honor; it is awarded to the student or students with the highest grade point average in the graduating class.

Winthrop Fountain

A number of fountains have stood in front of Tillman Hall over Winthrop's history. According to the Louise Pettus Archives and Special Collections at Winthrop, the original fountain was installed around 1897 and moved at some point between 1912-13 to Roddey Courtyard shortly after Roddey was completed in 1920. The second fountain was constructed sometime between 1918-19 and reached the end of its functional life in 2018. To restore a functioning fountain on front campus, the donor-funded Fountain Restoration Project was initiated in 2020. Thanks to the generosity of many alumni and friends of Winthrop, a new fountain was installed in November 2023 and formally dedicated in June 2024.

The Morgan-Holcombe Alumni Center at the Stewart House

The Stewart House was built in 1895 by Captain W.H. Stewart of Fort Mill, a prosperous farmer and member of the State House of Representatives from 1886-1890. Stewart built the first Victorian townhouse in Rock Hill in 1891, which he donated to Winthrop in 1894 for the president's residence. In 1895, Stewart served as construction superintendent to supervise the completion of Main Building (now Tillman Hall) and constructed the Stewart House as his second home during this time. Stewart occupied the house until his death in 1912. The acre lot and house were sold to Winthrop for $10,000. From 1912-1939, the Stewart House served as Winthrop's practice home, where seniors would live to gain experience living independently and managing a "typical rural southern home." Routines included housecleaning, outdoor laundering, poultry raising, beekeeping, cooking and gardening. In 1972, the Stewart House was converted into offices and has been home to various Winthrop departments.

Thanks to the generosity of Mrs. Betty Morgan Holcombe, Class of 1956, and her husband, Milton, the Stewart House became the Morgan-Holcombe Alumni Center at the Stewart House in 2023. Mrs. Holcombe had a vision for an alumni center on Winthrop's campus that would be a gathering place for alumni. In 2023, the Winthrop Alumni Association and Winthrop University Foundation offices moved their operations to the Stewart House, which brought about the realization of Mrs. Holcombe's wish for a stand-alone alumni center on Winthrop's campus. The center was officially dedicated on June 27, 2024.

The great aim of our living and striving should be to become better men and women in heart and soul
as well as in mind and body.

— David Bancroft Johnson, 1903

EMBRACE TRADITION

Former Traditions

As Winthrop progressed from a single gender institution in a borrowed one-room building to a fully accredited, co-educational university, traditions celebrating the school's single gender identity were retired. Below you will find traditions that defined Winthrop in the last century and paved the way for many of the traditions we recognize today.

Classes Night

Classes Night was an annual skit competition between the freshman, sophomore, junior, and senior classes. Each class, identified by their respective mascots, colors and blankets, created original skits and costumes relative to the Classes Night theme. Skits were judged on originality and adherence to theme and were carefully guarded secrets until being performed at Classes Night. This tradition, along with class blankets, colors and mascots, ended in 1980.

students and made into a long chain with rope and ivy, and after singing class songs, the president of the senior class signified the passing of the senior rank to the junior class by giving her mortar board to the junior class president.

Daisy Chain

In 1903, President Johnson brought the idea of the Daisy Chain to campus in an effort to promote Winthrop to state and local dignitaries and community members. Daisies were gathered by Seniors then “capped” the juniors and the daisy chain was left wrapped around the designated class tree. The tradition originally followed commencement, but as the years passed and enrollment grew, the Daisy Chain moved to the day before Commencement and relocated from the fountain to the athletic field adjacent to Crawford. The tradition was phased out in 1961.

Festival of Carols

From 1971-1992, Winthrop held the annual Winthrop Christmas Program in Byrnes Auditorium, which involved performances by Winthrop music ensembles as well as community groups. This event later transformed into Sounds of the Holiday in 1993, then Festival of Carols in 1994. The inaugural festival played host to several hundred people from the campus and community and included performances by Winthrop music ensembles. It grew to include a variety of activities, from tree lighting ceremonies to a children's party with Santa Claus. In 2009, the Festival was retired due to Winthrop's increasing involvement in ChristmasVille, a holiday festival centered in downtown Rock Hill.

Freshman Drop-In

During the 1940s and 1950s, the Freshman Drop-In offered new students an opportunity to meet the president and other school staff as well as the campus student leaders. The event usually took place at the president's house or garden in the fall semester, but in the 1980s it became known as the Freshman Picnic as part of Orientation.

Fine Arts Series

Prior to cultural event credits, the Fine Arts Series gave students the opportunity to experience a variety of arts and cultural programs. The program began during President Johnson's administration and was once referred to as “The Star Course.” Acts from around the country, including Broadway shows, symphonies, international artists, and celebrities of the period were invited to campus each year. Most of the events took place in Byrnes Auditorium and many were sponsored by the Winthrop Student Government Association. In later years, Winthrop partnered with the Rock Hill community to showcase the Fine Art Series.

Literary Societies

In its early years, Winthrop had three literary societies. The Winthrop Literary Society formed in 1888 when classes were still held in Columbia, S.C., prior to Winthrop's move to Rock Hill. The Curry Literary Society was established in 1895 following the move. In 1909, the Wade Hampton Literary Society began, as growing interest in literary societies created the need for a third organization. Members of these groups met frequently and discussed literature in a social setting, and collaborated to publish "The Winthrop Journal," a monthly campus magazine. Also, a student from each of the literary societies was chosen to speak at Commencement, which was considered quite an honor. Most women were part of a literary society while attending Winthrop. The Winthrop Literary Society remains an active campus organization and is recognized as the oldest student organization on campus.

May Day

From 1929 to 1971, the May Day tradition was planned by the senior class and held on the first Saturday of May prior to graduation. Festivities included music, dancing and the May Court pageant, which consisted of 18 members, with four attendants elected by each class. Hundreds of spectators, including Winthrop students, parents, alumni and community members, gathered annually to enjoy the activities and to watch the crowning of the May Queen.

Navy Blue and White Uniforms

The uniform policy began in 1895 in an effort to make students equals, with no regard to socio-economic class. Students whose wardrobe deviated from the uniform in any way were brought before the Uniform Council. While the styles transformed dramatically throughout the years, navy blue and white remained a tradition. When discussion began about the possibility of Winthrop becoming a co-educational institution, the tradition of uniforms was abolished in 1955. However, discussion about co-education continued until Winthrop became fully co-educational in 1974.

Rat Week

The tradition of Rat Week originated in 1945 and required freshmen to perform whatever duties upperclassmen assigned them. Cleaning rooms, carrying books and writing letters were typical tasks assigned to first-year students. Freshmen were also required to wear garnet and gold beanies at all times, meaning beanies were worn while sleeping, eating, bathing, and even while combing their hair. The purpose of Rat Week was to promote friendship between freshmen and upperclassmen, but the tradition ended when new hazing policies were established in 1978 by the Board of Trustees.

SGA President Dunked in the Fountain

The Student Government Association established a tradition popular among students in the 1940s, '50s and '60s. Each spring, students assembled to observe the installation ceremony for officers of the student government and various campus organizations, which included the outgoing SGA president dunking the incoming president in the fountain in front of Tillman Hall. In 1960, immediately following the installation of the SGA president, students surprised then university president Charles Davis with a spontaneous dunk in the fountain.

The Tatler

In 1898, the first official Winthrop yearbook was published. For over a century, the student publication documented classes, campus life, and university history and was a cherished Winthrop tradition. However, decreasing interest in hardcover annuals and the advent of online communication and social networking led to the retirement of this tradition in 2001. The last edition of The Tatler captured university history for the 2001-02 academic year.

Current Traditions

As a new member of the Winthrop family, you are encouraged to embrace the traditions that define the Winthrop experience. Participate in these traditions, cherish your time at Winthrop and reflect upon how these activities and beliefs have shaped the history of the university you enjoy today.

Alma Mater

In 1914, President Johnson proposed a competition among the four classes to prepare a college song. Over the years, the alma mater was adapted to suit the changing character of Winthrop, but the tradition of an official college song continues. At opening convocation in 1986, the Winthrop Glee Club performed the current alma mater, which was adopted to usher in Winthrop's second century. Become familiar with the current Alma Mater, which can be found on page 53, as you never know when you may be asked to sing it.

- ▶ “Lo She Stands, Our Alma Mater”
 - Submitted by the class of 1915
- ▶ “Oh Hail Dear Alma Mater”
 - Written by Lily Strickland and retired in 1922

Athletic Events

With 16 NCAA Division I intercollegiate teams competing in the Big South Conference, finding an opportunity to relax and watch your favorite sport is easy. Winthrop Athletics has a tradition of winning championships and representing the university in the NCAA tournaments. In addition to stellar performances in the athletic arena, Winthrop student-athletes excel in the classroom and spend countless hours serving the community. All regular season events are free for Winthrop students to attend. Cheer on the Eagles! Attend a game; join the official student support group, The WU Crew; and keep up on X with @WUEagles or www.winthroeagles.com.

Blue Line

Established in 1895 by President Johnson, the Blue Line is among Winthrop's most cherished traditions. Originally the women were led in two lines down Oakland Avenue, where they could attend any one of the many churches along the street. The procession of students dressed in blue and white uniforms was led by the president on the first Sunday of the academic year and eventually became known as the "Blue Line." When the uniform policy ended, the tradition lost its identity, but in 1983 President Lader revived the Blue Line. Traditionally, the president leads students out of Convocation to the lawn where students can enjoy food, novelties and vendor tables. Participate in the 2024 Blue Line by wearing your Blue Line shirt to Convocation on Monday, Aug. 19!

Commencement

The first Commencement ceremony took place on June 17, 1887 in Columbia, S.C., the original home of Winthrop, and awarded degrees to 14 students. While the program has changed over time, all Winthrop graduates share the experience and tradition of our Commencement exercises. Today, ceremonies for graduate and undergraduate students are held each semester at the Winthrop Coliseum. Support your fellow Eagles by attending graduation before your final semester.

Convocation

Convocation first began as an opening speech and welcome to the incoming freshman class by the university's first president, David Bancroft Johnson. This welcome later became known as Convocation in 1983 during President Phil Lader's tenure. Today, President Serna convenes the freshman class to offer them an official welcome to Winthrop, and traditionally a guest alumnus has shared how the Winthrop experience has shaped his or her life after graduation. Be sure to attend the 2024 Convocation on Monday, Aug. 19, 2024 to experience this cherished tradition.

Day of Giving

The Division of University Advancement established Giving Day in 2019. The university's aim to provide a contemporary, collaborative and supportive environment for students is achieved through the Day of Giving, a 24-hour day of philanthropy for Winthrop alumni, parents, faculty, staff, students and friends to invest in the future of Winthrop by making a gift of any size! Join fellow Winthrop Eagles as we celebrate Winthrop's tradition of giving in spring 2025! Visit Winthrop.edu/givingday for Day of Giving details!

Family Day

Family Day, a tradition begun by President Phelps in 1936, was renewed in 2007 to become a fun-filled, engaging and educational time for students and their families. Today, there are numerous fun activities that characterize life at Winthrop. Invite your family to join us for this year's Family Day on Saturday, Oct. 5, 2024 to see why Winthrop is your family away from home.

Garnet and Gold Fridays

Garnet and Gold Fridays began in the fall of 2007 as a spirit initiative of the Student Alumni Council. The group encourages the entire campus community to promote Winthrop by dressing in garnet and gold clothing every Friday. Members also award prizes for wearing school colors and issue "citations" for those wearing a rival school's gear. Show others your Winthrop pride and join in the fun of Garnet and Gold Fridays.

Ghost Tours

Spooky stories also play an important role in the rich history and culture at Winthrop. In the fall of 2005, the Student Alumni Council began hosting Ghost Tours, an event that explores the campus legends and historical figures that have shaped Winthrop. All of the proceeds from the event are given to the Winthrop Fund, Winthrop's unrestricted fund, which helps a variety of campus needs. Check the Student Alumni Council website and social media for more details this fall, www.winthrop.edu/alumni/student-alumni-council.aspx

Senior Week

The Alumni Association celebrates the final days for Winthrop seniors during Senior Week. Seniors are invited to a variety of events during the week leading up to Commencement where their accomplishments are honored, and they are welcomed to the Alumni Association. The senior class also has the opportunity to give back to Winthrop through the senior class gift, which are donations from the senior class to scholarships, programs and campus initiatives that are meaningful to them. The senior class gift is presented during the Champagne Toast at the President's House. Learn more about Senior Week at www.winthrop.edu/alumni/senior-week.aspx

Homecoming

Winthrop established Homecoming in 1978. Over the years, Homecoming has included a variety of activities: alumni events, athletic games, tailgating, float competitions, themed parties, student talent shows and special performances.

Since 2011 Homecoming and Alumni Reunion Weekend have been a combined event. During the weekend the Alumni Association recognizes reunion classes, alumni award recipients and Winthrop faculty and staff who are alumni. All alumni are invited to campus to celebrate.

During half-time of the men's basketball game, two distinguished students are crowned Homecoming Royalty. Attend one of the many Homecoming activities Nov. 4-9, 2024 to support your fellow Eagles and network with alumni.

International Education Week

Each fall semester the International Center hosts events promoting cultural exchange and activities among the general student population. Broaden your cultural horizons and experience the unique food, activities, and spirit of International Education Week, Nov. 18-22, 2024.

Model United Nations

The Model United Nations conference at Winthrop began in April 1977 and continues to attract interest among students. The conference is a college-sponsored simulation with the purpose of educating high school students about international politics and the role of the United Nations. Winthrop's program was the first of its kind to combine participation of college students and high school students. Enroll in the United Nations course or attend the opening night lecture during Model UN week, held each spring semester.

Official Winthrop Ring

Prior to the official Winthrop ring, several designs existed, which were used to create the current design that was adopted in fall 2003. Winthrop rings are reserved exclusively for undergraduate students of junior or senior standing that have earned at least 54 credit hours, graduate students who have completed 18 hours and alumni. Wear one and carry its meaning with you forever. Learn more at the Jostens website.

Official Winthrop Ring Ceremony

With the adoption of the new Winthrop ring design in 2003, the university also began honoring our ring recipients with a ceremony and reception. The rings are presented by the Alumni Association President, and students are encouraged to invite friends and family. For information on the 2024-25 Ring Days and Ring Ceremonies, check the Winthrop Ring webpage, www.winthrop.edu/alumni/winthrop-ring.aspx.

Student Involvement Fair

This festival was formerly known as Activities Day, but was changed when student organizations and the Council of Student Leaders began hosting the event. Each fall, members of registered student organizations assemble to promote their organizations and recruit new members. Engage in campus life by visiting the Student Involvement Fair on Thursday Sept. 5, 2024 at 11 a.m. on the Campus Green.

Tradition of Leadership and Service

The infusion of leadership and the dedication to the needs of others at Winthrop began with President Johnson and remains essential. Students can develop their leadership skills through roles in organizations or through service learning, service organizations, and volunteer programs. Reaffirm the importance of service as you recite the university's Dedication for Excellence during Convocation.

Welcome Week

In August 1985, Welcome Week began to offer students a variety of activities to ease the transition into college. Among these are entertaining acts (many of which earn cultural event credit!) brought to campus by the DiGiorgio Student Union (DSU). New freshmen and transfer students have required events to attend, but all of campus is involved in Welcome Week! Resident students move in and freshmen attend ACAD classes with Peer Mentors to become familiar with college life and the academic expectations of the university. Take part in Welcome Week this August.

Winthrop Annual Tree Lighting

The tradition of lighting the tree has looked different over the years as the tradition has grown and evolved with the times. Originally, a decorated Christmas tree in Main Building (now Tillman Hall) was lit to usher in the Christmas season. In 1935, the Christmas tree lighting was moved to the Southern magnolia tree on front campus, which was selected as the 2010 Heritage Tree by Trees SC for the great community spirit the tree evokes. In 1969 the annual tree lighting became an official event, and it continues as part of the City of Rock Hill's ChristmasVille. Today, the flagpole at the fountain is now lit to celebrate the season to ensure the health and sustainability of the Southern Magnolia. Join your fellow Eagles for this festive tradition on Friday, Dec. 6, 2024 at 6 p.m. on the Tillman Hall Front Lawn.

Winthrop Day

This special day is a huge celebration for all 2025 admitted students hosted by Winthrop Admissions, giving future Eagles a chance to experience all that Winthrop and the Rock Hill community have to offer. Current students assist as volunteers for greeting, working check-in, running a station at the fair and leading visitors across campus. Be on the lookout for an e-mail mid-spring from Admissions asking for students to help us welcome incoming Eagles at Winthrop Day on Saturday, April 5, 2025!

WUchella

WUchella is a fun end-of-the-year event based on the infamous "Coachella" music festival. WUchella takes some of the best elements of Coachella and gives it a Winthrop spin. In the past, this event has featured a Ferris wheel, carousel, fried Oreos, a live band, water slides, and MORE! Come and experience this new Winthrop tradition on Friday, April 25, 2025!

Build Your Own Traditions

Now that you have read about the university's traditions and how they began, grab your friends and create some traditions of your own. Not sure where to start? Check out this list of activities that have become traditions among current students.

Winthrop Symbols

Take a minute to learn more about the emblems that represent Winthrop both on campus and in the community.

Seal

In 1899, Winthrop President David Bancroft Johnson appointed a faculty committee to suggest a motto for the school. “Veritas cum libertate,” or “Truth with Liberty,” was chosen by the faculty. The committee then began designing a seal incorporating the new motto. On May 14, 1900, the faculty voted unanimously to accept the design still in use as the Winthrop Seal.

Coat of Arms

The Winthrop University Coat of Arms, created by the College of Arms in London under the approval of Queen Elizabeth II and adopted in 1980, incorporates a shield and helmet, the university motto and two flaming torches and two open books to represent learning. A diagonal blue line through the shield represents the blue uniforms that were worn at Winthrop until the 1950s. The garnet and gold represent traditional school colors.

Mace

The first maces were weapon-like staffs used in ancient Rome to honor heroes and nobility. Maces were later used in the courts of England as symbols of authority. Today, maces are associated with the American judicial and legislative systems, as well as with colleges and universities. The current Winthrop mace was designed, produced and engraved by the late Alfred Ward, art and design professor emeritus. It is made of silver with detailing of 22K gold overlay. The stem is crafted from an African hardwood.

BIG STUFF

Winthrop Colors

The 1902 student handbook is the earliest handbook in the collection at Winthrop's Louise Pettus Archives and Special Collections. It states that the college colors were garnet and gold. Garnet and gold were also the official colors of the Winthrop Training School, the Winthrop band and the freshmen rat caps. In 1979, garnet and gold were officially adopted by Winthrop Athletics. Today, garnet and gold are featured prominently across campus, on uniforms of our athletic teams and on clothing.

Navy blue and white, while not official Winthrop colors, have traditionally been associated with the academic nature of the university, which is an homage to the uniforms worn by Winthrop students from 1895-1955.

The Winthrop Eagle

Originally, each class was represented by its own mascot. In November 1975, the Student Government Association (SGA) began the process of selecting a mascot to represent the entire university. After polling students, faculty and staff, the possible mascots were narrowed to three choices: the Sandlappers, the Cardinals and the Eagles. The SGA chose the Eagles, which became the official mascot in 1980. Over the years, our Eagle mascot has evolved, going through numerous wardrobe changes. In 2010, Big Stuff was named one of the top mascots in the nation by the National Cheerleading Association.

Legacy Program

The Alumni Association recognizes Winthrop alumni and their family members who attend Winthrop. A legacy student is a child, grandchild, or sibling of a Winthrop alumnus who is seeking an undergraduate degree at Winthrop. As a family member of a Winthrop graduate, these students continue the Winthrop legacy. Winthrop has more than 250 legacy students!

Legacy students and their families are invited to special events throughout the year that celebrate their Winthrop lineage. A few of these events include:

- Welcome from the Alumni Association at Orientation with the Legacy Photo Booth
- Welcome Week Legacy Meet and Greet
- Carrying On the Winthrop Tradition Brunch with Winthrop Archives
- Legacy Family Social during Family Day
- Senior Legacy Family Reception

If you would like more information about the Legacy Program, please e-mail Brittany Neely '14, alumni engagement coordinator, at neelyb@winthrop.edu or call 803/323-3050.

DIVERSITY AT WINTHROP

Promoting cultural diversity through enhancing knowledge, building awareness and breaking barriers

Diversity Peer Educators

This program is designed to help educate Winthrop students on diverse topics in order to create an inclusive campus. Through campus programs, education, exploration, inclusion, awareness, and advocacy the DPEs work to foster a beneficial community in which everyone feels welcomed.

First-Generation College Celebration

Winthrop has been recognized as an institution that has demonstrated a commitment to improving experiences and advancing outcomes of first-generation college students. The week of Nov. 8, Winthrop joins the nation to celebrate the success of Winthrop's first-generation college students, faculty, staff, and alumni.

Safe Zones

The Safe Zones program is designed to promote acceptance of diversity on the Winthrop University campus and to aid in the reduction of homophobia and stigmas associated with members of the LGBTQIA+ community. Safe Zone members believe that regardless of sexual orientation, gender, gender expression, race, ethnicity, national origin, religion, age, and ability you will be treated and respected as a valuable member of our community.

Student Veterans and Military-Affiliated Students

Winthrop offers a variety of services and opportunities for our student veterans and other military-affiliated students to help you successfully transition from military life to civilian life, and we encourage you to utilize these services. Additionally, the Student Veterans Center is a designated space for active duty, National Guard/Reservist, and veteran students.

The Diversity Center is a visible cultural, educational, and social space for all students to meet and hangout, and for students to explore issues related to cultural competence, diversity, and social justice.
