Graduate Director Greg Oakes: He called attention to a new link on Winthrop University homepage linking to graduate programs. He also took note of advertising by Winthrop on Washington Post web page. Advertising is gearing up thanks to efforts of Jack DeRochi. The Digital Commons effort will imply that master's theses will be reposed digitally, likely meaning that students will need to supply only three, instead of four, hard copies, and authors are free to establish an embargo on the content for a certain period. The Graduate School is seeking stories about graduate students' accomplishments and noteworthy efforts; please ask such students if they would be willing to be part of publicity efforts Contact DeRochi about these students. Also, DeRochi would like to establish as part of the quarterly newsletter a column by alumni of the program, and those who know of suitable alumni are encouraged to contact the alumni and send the information to the Graduate School office. The next copy deadline is Feb. 6.

The next meeting is set for March 27.

There were no comments from Dean Kedrowski.

Meeting adjourned at 3:58 p.m.
