The graduate school is working on a self-study to develop a strategic plan for the next few years. Surveys will be sent out next month. Faculty members were requested to complete surveys thus providing information to the graduate school. Many of the graduate faculty works in the College of Arts and Science making the voice of CAS faculty important.

Resources are being developed using social media to aid with recruitment and retention. There is a workshop that will be present to provide ideas on how to keep social media active for current and former students. Another workshop will provide Department Chairs with information on making websites.
SLAT is a new software tool that can create and send out individual emails that respond to inquiries. It will take a little time to set up but the software should positively decrease the manual labor needed to respond to emails. Another workshop will be set up to provide more information to interested programs.

Any thoughts or ideas to help contact, recruit, and communicate with students can be sent to Dr. Greg Oaks.

Faculty is interested on Dr. Mahoney’s thoughts and actions on graduate education. It was proposed that we invite Dr. Mahoney’s to a Graduate Faculty Assembly meeting. The importance of graduate education was noted.
