

Getting your Scout Project Underway.

Does a Scout Project on this list interest you?

Getting Started:

Make initial contact with Dean Kedrowski to set up a tour and meeting with Winthrop contact person.

- Work with your troop leader and designed Winthrop faculty or staff member to design your project.
 - Depending upon your project's needs, Winthrop University may have supplies or funds available to help you complete your project. In addition, your contact person or Scout leader may know of funding opportunities that can help support your project.
- Secure all necessary approvals from your Scouting organization.

Before Starting Work on Campus:

- Coordinate the project work schedule with Winthrop personnel to avoid conflicts with major University events.
- Determine what services you require from Winthrop University when you are working on campus. Place these request through Dean Kedrowski's office. Possible services include:
 - Reserved parking and parking passes
 - Catering Services
 - Access to remote areas to deliver supplies
 - Access to a nearby building for meals and restrooms
 - Tables
 - Helping hands: Winthrop employees or students who are interested in helping with Scout projects

When You Come to Campus:

Winthrop University requires that Scouts be in the company of a parent, guardian, or troop leader when working on projects on campus.

All individuals (Scouts and parent volunteers) participating in a Scout project must submit a liability waiver and a health information form to Dean Kedrowski prior to beginning work on the project. Should the project require the efforts of multiple Scouts, all participants must complete and submit these forms prior to working on campus.
