Travel and Professional Development in the College of Arts & Sciences

Updated: August 12, 2015

The College of Arts & Sciences (CAS) recognizes the importance of travel to support faculty and student research, student intellectual development, and faculty/staff/student professional development. Indeed, conference attendance is an important means to develop and maintain a research agenda, raise the institution’s profile, mentor students, and serve the discipline.

The purpose of this document is to summarize the travel policies and procedures for CAS. All travel funding provided by the college will be consistent with university policies and state requirements. For more information on specific procurement rules, consult Accounts Payable.

Request for Travel Support Procedures

Application requirements
Travelers are encouraged to review the Travel Expense Overview for complete information.

Forms
Individuals requesting travel funds from any university source must complete a Travel Authorization (TA) form.

Justifications
Applicants should provide detailed justification for the travel, the benefit that will accrue to the traveler and/or the institution, and the activities s/he will undertake during the trip. The stronger the traveler’s case, the more likely s/he is to receive funding.

Signatures
All TAs need to be signed by the traveler and department chair prior to submission to the Dean’s office for approval. In cases where grant funds are being used, a signature from the principal investigator or responsible individual and indicated amount of support from the grant is also requested.

Electronic signatures are not allowed for travel paperwork. In cases where departments are working with individuals that may not be local, please consult early with the Assistant to the Dean to determine an appropriate plan of action.

Department Support for Travel
When department are able to support travel through operating funds this should be indicated on the TA before it is submitted to the Dean’s office. The department does not need to designate what is to be paid, only how much support they can offer. When the justification of the trip would warrant funds from the college, the availability of department funds will not affect the support decision at the college level.
Insurance Purposes Only
Winthrop employees or students planning professional travel but not seeking financial support are required to complete a TA and enter $0 in the “Total Requested” field. This TA ensures Winthrop insurance will cover the traveler in accordance with the current University insurance policy. No travel reimbursement forms are required in these instances.

All travelers are encouraged to review the Risk Management Standards of Practice information for specific guidance on the role of personal and University insurance. In general when traveling in personal vehicles, the traveler’s personal insurance is seen as primary and the University’s insurance is secondary.

Blanket Travel Authorization
Faculty and staff members who travel frequently may choose to submit a blanket travel authorization. This option permits employees to cover numerous trips for the same or similar purposes with a single blanket TA.

Remunerated Travel
Faculty members who travel for professional purposes whose travel expenses are paid by another organization should file a travel authorization for $0 to ensure they are covered by Winthrop University insurance. Examples include service on a professional association’s board, review of programs at other institutions, guest lectures, and the like.

Travel expenses paid by other agencies or organizations are considered remuneration even if no other honoraria or compensation is provided. They are thus subject to approval by the University. Faculty members need to complete the Outside Employment and Consulting form prior to such travel.

Travel to Political Events and Gatherings
The College will fund travel to political conventions, rallies, and other gatherings for the purposes of research and/or student intellectual development, and as long as any state employees who attend abide by the Guidelines for Appropriate Civic Engagement as a State Employee. Faculty requesting support for such events should include a clear indication of the purpose of the trip that reflects compliance with the Guidelines for Appropriate Civic Engagement as a State Employee.

Deadlines
General University policy requires that TAs are received in Accounts Payable at least seven days in advance of any travel. Due to processing at the college level, all TAs should be submitted at least ten business days in advance of any travel.

Individuals requesting funds from CAS must submit TAs in line with the following deadlines. CAS has four deadlines to submit applications for travel support. Signed TAs must be submitted to the Dean’s office by:
- September 1
- November 15
- January 31 (final opportunity for travel prior to June 30)
- April 1 (first opportunity for travel after July 1)

Should any of these deadlines fall on a weekend or University holiday, travel requests will be due on the next business day.

Individuals who submit funding requests for travel that will occur before the next deadline will be accommodated on a case-by-case basis. Further, most College funds will be allocated by the January 31st deadline. Therefore, individuals submitting requests after this date for current year travel may receive less support.

Individuals who submit funding requests between these dates, but whose travel occurs after the next deadline will be held and considered with all other requests submitted on the next deadline.

Considerations related to college travel support

CAS will make every effort to provide partial support for travel requests, subject to available funding. Faculty members are also encouraged to apply for funding from other internal and external sources, as appropriate. Due to procurement rules such as per diem rates and as a result of the availability of travel funds at the College, individuals should expect to contribute some to the cost of all travel. The types of travel funded and the priorities used to determine the level of funding are based on faculty feedback gathered from an anonymous survey in Spring 2014. This discussion and feedback resulted in the decision to provide support for multiple trips as funds allow.

Travel by professional staff members

CAS recognizes that staff may have professional development needs that require travel. Staff members wishing to engage in such opportunities should follow the application procedures described in this document and include a significant justification for their participation. Their requests will be considered alongside all others. When possible all individuals seeking travel support from the college should first seek alternative sources such as grants, contracts, and the closest academic unit to which travel is associated. The availability of other support will influence the amount awarded.

Types of travel funded

CAS will provide support for travel for the following reasons. This is not an exhaustive list and is provided for illustrative purposes only:

- To accompany undergraduate and graduate students who are presenting or co-presenting research at professional or student research conferences.
- To attend a conference or workshop to maintain required professional licensures.
• To attend a conference or workshop to prepare for an accreditation visit or as required to maintain national accreditation.
• To present original disciplinary research and/or in the scholarship of teaching and learning at a professional conference.
• To receive professional development to support an administrative position at the institution (e.g., department chair, graduate director, program director, etc.)
• To represent the University in some official capacity at the request of the Dean, Provost, or President.
• To serve on a governing board of a professional association.

Other sources of travel funds
Departments may provide travel or other professional development funds at their discretion and as budgetary constraints allow. In addition, employees are encouraged to seek funding through other University offices in accordance with their procedures. Finally, grants and contracts should be designed to include support for travel related to the project when possible.

When travel for faculty, staff, and/or students is completely supported by other sources and do not require additional funds from CAS. TAs may be submitted at any time and must include appropriate budget numbers and authorizations.

Student travel supported by the Graduate School or the Undergraduate Research program
Submission expectations and priority funding information should be reviewed directly through the Graduate School and Undergraduate Research program.

Procedures when Winthrop Foundation funds are allocated
Travelers supported by the Foundation should review the Travel and Entertainment Policy created by the Winthrop Foundation.
• A TA is required for travel supported by the Foundation.
• Travelers must use the Winthrop Foundation forms to submit reimbursement requests. The most likely forms to be required for travel are WUF-D and WUF-E.
• The reimbursement rules when using Winthrop Foundation Funds are in many cases very similar to those when using University funds. It is the traveler’s responsibility to know differences or seek guidance as needed.

Travel Reimbursement and Prepayment Procedures

Submission requirements
Travelers are encouraged to review the Travel Expense Overview for complete information.

Form
Upon return from a trip for which reimbursement is sought, the traveler must be complete a Travel Reimbursement (TR) form. The TR requires separation of items paid directly by the traveler from items paid in advance by a procurement card or check request. Only certain allowable expenses can be prepaid and only in cases where travel support is sufficient to cover such expenses. All purchases using a University-issued procurement card must comply with University Procurement Card Policies and Procedures.

Travelers are encouraged to list all reimbursable trip-related costs on the TR to support documentation of unmet travel needs. The actual reimbursement received by the traveler will be determined as the amount of funds that are authorized on the TA, less the pre-paid items.

Signatures
All TRs need to be signed by the traveler and department chair prior to submission to the Dean’s office for approval. In cases where grant funds are being used, a signature from the principal investigator or responsible individual and indicated amount of support from the grant is also required.

Electronic signatures are not allowed for travel paperwork. In cases where departments are working with individuals that may not be local, please consult early with the Assistant to the Dean to determine an appropriate plan of action.

Receipts
Travelers must attach required original receipts to the TR for items that are requested as reimbursable directly to the traveler. In addition, copies of receipts for pre-paid items should be included and the originals of these receipts will remain in the p-card files. Printed copies of emailed receipts are acceptable. See “allowable expenses” below for more information on required receipts.

Receipts printed on paper smaller than 8.5 by 11 inches should be taped to clean white copy paper. Please only tape on the outside edge, avoiding the printed areas, as the tape may cause the ink to fade.

Other Attachments
- Approved TA
- A conference overview (see further information in the Meals below)

Deadlines
Travelers should submit TRs and all necessary attachments as soon as possible and are strongly encouraged to do so within two to three weeks of completing the travel.

Travel in June is subject to specific university deadlines as a result of end-of-year processing regulations. The university provides specific dates for end-of-year reimbursements each spring. These dates are sent by email to department chairs, administrative personnel, and the assistant to the dean. Failure to meet university deadlines will result in a forfeiture of designated funds. The college established the following dates to assure college-level processing meets university end-of-year deadlines:
Travel completed by: Reimbursements Submitted to Dean’s Office by:

*If these dates fall on a non-business day submit by the following business day.

Allowable expenses
Allowable expenses include, but are not necessarily limited to, transportation (airfare, taxi, shuttle, vehicle rental, parking, gasoline, mileage, public transit, etc. as appropriate); registration; lodging; and per diem, as permitted by University policy and state regulations. Faculty should consult the Travel Expense Overview for the most recent and complete regulations.

Transportation
- Mileage is paid at the current rate indicated on the Travel Expense Overview.
- Taxi receipts are appreciated but not required. Printed receipts emailed through services such as a square credit card reader or PayPal readers are acceptable.
- Printed receipts from email or the airline website are acceptable for airfare.
- Unless renting a vehicle after arriving at the destination, vehicle rental should be secured through the company with the current procurement contact.
- Parking, public transportation, airport shuttle services, and other similar expenses require a receipt. Printed receipts emailed through services such as a square credit card reader or PayPal readers are acceptable. Such expenses should be listed by type under “other” on the TR.
- Checked baggage charges are allowable and require a receipt. Such expenses should be listed under “other” on the TR.

Registration
Registration can be prepaid if the travel support awarded is greater than the registration costs. Membership fees that are tied to registration can be supported by professional development dollars and thus included on travel forms when membership is required to attend a conference or paying the membership fees would result in either a cost neutral or lower cost for the institution.

Lodging
Lodging receipts showing a zero balance are required. When listing on the reimbursement form, lodging and associated taxes should be separated from other expenses that may have been charged to the traveler’s room.

Communication services
Wi-Fi charges at the lodging or conference location are allowable expenses but require a receipt. These should be listed under “other” on the TR.
Meals
Receipts for meals are not required and all meals are subject to per diem limits and regulations. The University does not reimburse for alcohol consumed.

From time to time, conference registration fees or lodging locations cover some meals. The University does not provide per diem reimbursement for such covered meals. A copy of the conference schedule overview or other document clearly outlining any meals included in registration fees is required. In cases where no meals are included a statement in the conference materials to this effect is sufficient. This documentation is required to provide evidence that the university is meeting guidelines associated with state reimbursement regulations. Travelers are encouraged to minimize what is printed while still meeting this requirement.

Exceptions for individuals with special dietary requirements may be made. In these cases, the traveler should contact Accounts Payable before completing the Travel Reimbursement form.

The traveler should review the Travel Expense Overview for further guidance and contact Accounts Payable with any question.

Overview of process once submitted
Once a signed TR and accompanying attachments are submitted to the Dean’s office they are reviewed by the Assistant to the Dean. This review includes checking for all required attachments and reviewing to ensure accuracy of elements such as account numbers, listing of costs that were prepaid, and adherence to procurement rules. The packet is then signed by the Dean or his/her designee and forwarded to Accounts Payable. Packets are then reviewed again for similar requirements and questions are sent back to the Assistant to the Dean or traveler as needed.

The time needed to process paperwork can vary due to volume of requests and other workload, availability of key personnel that are essential to the process, and incomplete information. Every effort is made at all levels of review to address requests as they are received. However, travelers are encouraged to plan ahead in case there are unavoidable delays in processing. Key strategies to consider are to complete paperwork immediately upon return, work to see that the paperwork moves from the department to the Assistant to the Dean quickly, ensure that the paperwork submitted is clear and meets the guidelines, and prepay allowable expenses to reduce the amount of the reimbursement.

Procedures when Winthrop Foundation funds are allocated
Travelers supported by the Foundation should review the Travel and Entertainment Policy created by the Winthrop Foundation.
- A TA is required for travel supported by the Winthrop Foundation.
- Travelers must use the Winthrop Foundation forms to submit reimbursement requests. The most likely forms to be required for travel are WUF-D and WUF-E.

Other Information on Travel

Approved vehicles when traveling with students
Faculty traveling with students are encouraged to rent vehicle(s) from the University’s provider or use an official university vehicle in order to be covered directly by University insurance. All travelers are encouraged to review the Risk Management Standards of Practice information for specific guidance on the role of personal and University insurance.

Canceled trips
Travelers are asked to notify the Assistant to the Dean in cases where travel plans change and awarded support is no longer required. Doing so in a timely fashion may allow for additional support for a colleague or student.

Courses with a travel component
Courses that include a significant travel component (e.g., spring break trip, short-term study abroad) need to complete the University’s special course authorization form and comply with all other University requirements. See additional information on field trips and study abroad.

Faculty absences
CAS recognizes professional travel as a legitimate reason to be absent from one’s regular on-campus responsibilities. However, faculty members are expected to minimize the impact of their absences on student learning. They may do so by arranging for colleagues to cover their classes, developing alternative assignments, and/or teaching remotely using appropriate technology. In any case, faculty absences must abide by the Faculty Absence Policy.

Professional development not requiring travel
Increasingly, appropriate professional development opportunities are available to faculty and staff through webinars and other electronic means. CAS will consider requests for support for this type of professional development on a case-by-case basis. Factors in the decision include, but are not limited to, the cost of the professional development opportunity, the benefit to the College or to other employees, and the relationship of the subject matter to the faculty or staff member’s professional responsibilities.

Reimbursable travel for non-employees
Travel reimbursements for non-employees follow the guidelines outlined in this document and links. Non-employees include individuals such as university guests, candidates for faculty positions, and students. In cases where no expenses are to be pre-paid, the traveler does not need a TA. Reimbursement using the state per diem rates should not include any meals that are provided while the guest is on campus.
For more information on hosting meals refer to College and University policies associated with events.

For more information on hosting a job candidates and associated reimbursement refer to College and University policies associated with employee recruitment.

Student absences
Faculty and students are required to follow the Student Attendance Policy. In CAS authorized representation of the university includes but is not limited to conference participation, short-term study abroad, field trips, creative performances, and athletic competitions. Students are responsible for providing the appropriate documentation to instructors in advance of the planned travel. In addition, students are expected to confer with instructors in advance and to arrange to make up any required work in a timely fashion.

Travel authorization involving students
Submit a travel authorization(s) with the names and Winthrop ID numbers of all students and Winthrop employees participating in the travel, even if one is not seeking any financial support for the trip. This ensures that the travelers are covered by Winthrop University insurance.
