WORLD HISTORY TO 950

Spring 2015
Dr. Pretty

History 111, Section 001 22623. 3 credit hours. Monday, Wednesday, Friday 8–8:50 Kinard 204
Office hours: Monday and Wednesday, 10–11, Friday 11–1, or by appointment
Bancroft 360 prettyd@winthrop.edu 323-4675

Course description. This course will examine the history of the world’s major cultures from their beginnings until 950 AD. We will look at the ways, both similar and distinctive, in which these cultures met the challenges of civilization—organizing states, ordering societies, explaining how (and why) the world worked as it did.

Goals of the course. This course satisfies the historical perspectives, global perspectives, and arts and humanities requirements of the general education program. It also satisfies the first (“Winthrop graduates think critically and solve problems”), third (“Winthrop graduates understand the interconnected nature of the world and the time in which they live”), and fourth (“Winthrop graduates communicate effectively”) university-level competencies. By its very nature, this course participates in the Global Learning Initiative.

This course also satisfies a core requirement for both history majors and minors (two courses out of HIST 111, 112, 113). For that reason, students will satisfy the following goals for student learning outcomes of the history department’s B.A. degrees: the second (“History majors are personally and socially responsible. They demonstrate understanding of ethical dimensions of historical moments, processes, and developments.”), and the fourth (“History majors communicate effectively core themes, ideas, and subject matter, in both written and oral form”).

Student outcomes. In order to satisfy these complex goals, the course will have the following student learning outcomes:

Department goals:
Student Learning Outcome 2: History majors are personally and socially responsible. They demonstrate understanding of ethical dimensions of historical moments, processes, and developments.
Student Learning Outcome 4: History majors communicate effectively core themes, ideas, and subject matter, in both written and oral form.

University-level competencies:
1) Winthrop graduates think critically and solve problems.
3) Winthrop graduates understand the interconnected nature of the world and the time in which they live.
4) Winthrop graduates communicate effectively.

Students in this course are expected to achieve the following learning objectives related to the historical perspective component:

- Read, write and speak standard English on historical topics
- Critically read significant primary and/or secondary sources on historical questions. Students should be able to understand their reading, as well as spoken and non-verbal messages.
- Understand and practice rhetorical techniques and styles by speaking and writing on historical subjects. Speaking might include formal oral presentations, informal class discussion or small group discussions, or peer review. The writing component should include demonstrated writing competencies appropriate to the level of the course. This should be demonstrated through a number of evaluated writing assignments.
- Identify sound and unsound historical reasoning
- Demonstrate knowledge of diverse cultural, aesthetic, and/or intellectual viewpoints and milieus.
- Demonstrate ability to “think historically,” i.e., they appreciate both the differences and the relationships between past and present and how past eras differ from one another.
- Demonstrate an understanding of how historical change occurs and what causes it.
- Articulate a philosophy of history or be able to use the “tools” of historiographical study and research.
- Demonstrate knowledge of significant information specific to the topic, time period, or culture addressed.
- Analyze, synthesize, and critically evaluate “difference” and the value of diversity. Put in its most fundamental expression, students should be aware of and resist the easy temptation to equate “different” with “inferior” or “wrong”.

- Demonstrate an appreciation of universal themes or “human constants” across historical periods; e.g., basic needs, gender relations, poverty, wealth, property relations, political movements, aesthetic values, and religious experience.
- Demonstrate awareness of interrelationships that foster change among societies, regions, nations, and cultures.
- Identify the root causes of historical change or conflict and articulate methods of conflict resolution.
- Demonstrate recognition of historical causes for present realities.
- Demonstrate awareness of the impermanence of present circumstances and the inevitability of change in future realities.
- Demonstrate knowledge of how artistic forms and expressions have changed over time periods, cultures, and disciplines.
- Demonstrate understanding of the relationships among various art forms within their socio-historical contexts.
- Critically evaluate the connections between the arts and society.

and the following learning objectives related to the global perspective component:

1. To expose students to multiple perspectives such as the influences of economic, historical, political, social, and cultural forces in the development and functioning of the world
2. To study the effects of such forces on particular countries, cultures, and geographic regions
3. To apply critical thinking and analytical skills
4. To recognize human diversity (both past and present).

and the following learning objectives related to the humanities and arts perspective component:

1. Demonstrate knowledge of and appreciation for diverse intellectual and/or cultural viewpoints.
2. Critically evaluate diverse intellectual and/or cultural viewpoints.
6. Demonstrate knowledge of the history of the arts.
7. Demonstrate understanding of the relationships among various art forms within their sociohistorical contexts.
8. Demonstrate knowledge of and appreciation for diverse values and beliefs.
9. Critically evaluate those values and beliefs.
10. Examine their own values and beliefs.
11. Critically evaluate material in a variety of formats (e.g., written, aural, visual, etc.).
12. Gather information and to develop and effectively communicate ideas in Standard English.

In addition, in compliance with Touchstone requirements, this course requires written work amounting to between 2,000 and 2,500 words.

Course materials. You are required to read the following books for this course: they are available for sale at the bookstore; you must complete each week’s reading BY the date indicated on the syllabus.

- Gilgamesh (Herbert Mason, translator; this edition only)
- Sophocles, Antigone, Oedipus the King, Electra (this edition only)
- Sohaib N. Sultan, The Qur’an and Sayings of the Prophet Muhammad

Measuring student outcomes. The primary method of measuring student learning and competency outcomes will be in-class essay exams, specifically an essay midterm and a final (both of which will also have a short multiple choice sections on the readings and maps). About a week before each exam, students will receive study sheets containing potential identification and essay questions from those on the exam itself will be drawn. Student essay responses will be critically reasoned, well-organized arguments using evidence from the course materials, most importantly the lectures. The essay midterms will be worth 20 percent of the final grade, and the final examination (which will include two essays), 30 percent. Three such well-written essays should together run between 2,000 and 2,500 words.

Because these examinations account for most the grade, and because the most important source of the evidence necessary to construct essay responses to examination questions will come from lectures, students must attend all class sessions. The instructor will take roll regularly. Students are permitted three unexcused absences without penalty; every unexcused absence more than that will result in points being subtracted from your grade. For an excuse to be valid, it must state that the student could not attend class. For example, if the student obtains a blue note from Crawford, the student should ask for a written notation that the student was in fact too ill to attend class, else it probably will not be accepted. Excuses will also be accepted for deaths in the family, but must be supported by such evidence as an obituary or a funeral program containing the student’s surname. By remaining in this class, the student understands that the instructor may or may not accept any excuse for a missed class. No exams will be excused except with the most detailed, trustworthy, and verifiable information according to the instructor’s satisfaction. STUDENTS MUST TAKE EVERY EXAMINATION IN ORDER TO PASS THE COURSE. Regardless of the stipulations above, if a student misses more than 25 percent of class sessions, he or she is liable to receive an F in the course.

As explained above, the information presented in lectures will be necessary to successful student outcomes in the course. The lectures, however, presuppose that students have completed the reading, in particular the textbook (Duiker and Spielvogel) readings. The instructor assumes that students already have the knowledge base available in the textbook, and that the instructor can elaborate on and add to that evidentiary base in lecture; metaphorically, there is an assumption that students have already read in the textbook about the wheel, and that the instructor can thus discuss hubcaps in lecture. In order to assure that students are obtaining this evidentiary base, there will be quizzes at the beginning of the first class session of almost every week on the required readings for that week. This will last only five minutes, and comprise ten multiple choice questions. There will be no makeups of quizzes, so the student must be prompt. Each week’s quiz will cover the readings located to the right of that date in the schedule of classes below. The quiz component of the class will account for 20 percent of the course grade.

Outcomes will also be measured by the multiple-choice midterm examination. This examination will include questions from the material covered in every class session, and students will not only demonstrate a grasp of the course’s evidentiary content but will also be able to make reasoned, analytical choices between plausible critical statements on the basis of that content. This exam will account for 15 percent of the course grade.

Another mode of outcome measurement is class discussion. There will be a class discussion for each of the three nontextbook readings (Gilgamesh, Antigone, and the selections from the Qur’an and the Sayings of Muhammad). These dates are noted in the syllabus. Students are expected to be able to make critical arguments about the readings and respond to other students’ arguments in oral form. Participation on these discussion days, as well as class participation throughout the semester, will account for 15 percent of the course grade.

In addition, there will be occasional exercises that will be included in the oral participation grade. The instructor will ask for occasional exercises, such as student outlines of lecture, or short written (about 200 words) pieces on a subject that may arise in class, or pertaining to currents events that reflect course materials, or continuing class discussions on Blackboard.

Summary:
Essay midterm examination: 20 percent
Multiple choice midterm examination: 15 percent
Final examination: 30 percent
Weekly reading quizzes: 20 percent
Class oral participation: 15 percent

Grading system: This course will be graded on a plus/minus basis. All course components will receive a letter grade, the numerical value of which is equal to the grade points as listed in the Winthrop University Catalog (e.g., a C- equals 1.67). The final grade will result from a weighted average of those grades. I will only give incompletes in extraordinary circumstances.

Classroom behavior: The instructor will not tolerate disruptive behavior, such as personal conversations; such behavior may result in a student being counted as absent. Any use of an electronic device will cause the student to be counted as absent. Only the professor’s cell phone may operate during the class period as part of the Alertus system.

Ethical behavior: The instructor will not tolerate unethical behavior, and any student caught cheating will receive an F for the course. Students must supply bluebooks with their names on them to the instructor by the evening before the exams, or risk not being allowed to take the exam. In addition, because of past abuses, the wearing baseball caps, shorts, and short skirts may not be worn to class on exam days, and all backpacks, books, notebooks, PDAs, cell phones, watches (you can now thank Samsung for that), etc., must be left at the front of class. (Yes, shorts; the story is an entertaining one.)

Students with disabilities. Winthrop University is dedicated to providing access to education to all students, irrespective of disability. If you have a disability and require accommodations, please contact Gina Smith, Coordinator, Services for Students with Disabilities at 803-323-3290 as soon as possible. Once you have received your Professor Notification Form, please see the instructor before the first major assignment to discuss accommodations.
Syllabus Change Policy: The instructor does his best to adhere to the syllabus, but circumstances, whether based in the class’s own experiences, in world events, in weather conditions, or health conditions, may require a change in the syllabus. The syllabus posted on Blackboard will be always be considered the active one.

Global Events Calendar: For global events on campus, please go to ttp://www2.winthrop.edu/culturalevents/calendar.htm

SCHEDULE OF LECTURES AND READINGS

January 12: Introduction
January 14: From the Big Bang to the Stone Age
January 16: The Neolithic Revolution

January 21: The Fertile Crescent textbook, xxix–12
January 23: Mesopotamia

January 26: Egypt textbook, 12–21, 23–27; Gilgamesh
January 28: Discussion of Gilgamesh
January 30: Persia and Assyria

February 2: The Hebrews textbook, 21–23, 29–53
February 4: The Ten Commandments
February 6: Harappans and Aryans

February 9: Hinduism
February 11: Buddhism bluebooks due, 2/13
February 13: Essay Midterm

February 16: Early China textbook, 56–70
February 18: Daoism
February 20: Confucianism

February 23: Qin and Han textbook, 70–93, 132–37
February 25: Early Greece
February 27: Athens and Sparta

March 2: Greek Philosophy textbook, 93–109; Antigone
March 4: Discussion of Antigone
March 6: Macedonia and Hellenism

March 11: Imperial Rome
March 13: Rome in Decline

March 23: Early Christianity
March 25: Latin Europe
March 27: Multiple-Choice Midterm

March 30: The Byzantines textbook, 169–78, 329–37
April 1: Muhammad
April 3: The Spread of Islam

April 6: The Caliphate textbook, 183–94; Qur’an and Sayings
April 8: Islam Unites the Hemisphere
April 10: Discussion of Sultan

April 15: Tang China
April 17: Korea and Japan

April 20: The Polynesian Dispersal textbook, 144–53, 157–58, 163–66, 196–207,

April 22: Nubia and Axum 212–19, 239–47

April 24: The Bantu Dispersal

April 27: Mesoamerica and the Andes

Monday, May 4, 8 a.m. Final Examination. No exceptions will be given to this exam period. Make your travel plans around the exam schedule, and not the other way around. Bluebooks are due to the instructor the evening before.