

A Brief Note to The Students of Spring 2020 -- current, committed, and contemplating Winthrop:

To say that this has been a difficult semester is an epic understatement. However, the faculty and staff on The History Hall and all over campus are extremely proud of the way our students have stepped up and joined us in not only surviving the semester, but making it a successful learning experience.

There has been a viral storm sweeping, it seems, across the Milky Way and blowing through the beautifully iconic campus that we--and those of you who will join us next year--call home. You should remember, however, that Winthrop has survived many storms: The Panic of 1893, the Spanish Flu, two World Wars, a Great Depression, Korea and Vietnam, the Cold War, Nine Eleven, the wars on Terrorism, the Recession of 2008, and Disco!

This too shall pass. I used the word "home" earlier. That was an intentional word choice. The Winthrop Nation may extend around the world, but it is always and forever family. And now as I invite you into our website, let me leave you all—present and soon-to-be members of the family—with this encouraging image:

You take the virus – Our money's on the bird!

Winthrop Eagles WILL WIN!
