AFRICAN AMERICAN STUDIES MINOR RESOURCES

HELPFUL LINKS

Centers and Projects
- The Black Panther Party Research Project - Stanford University
- Center for Contemporary Black History (CCBH) - Columbia University
- The Joint Center for Political and Economic Studies
- Southern Poverty Law Center

Informational Links
- Africans in America - Public Broadcasting Service (PBS)
- Brown @ 50: Fulfilling the Promise - Howard University School of Law
- "I will be heard!" Abolitionism in America - Cornell University Library
- The Martin Luther King, Jr., Research & Education Institute - Stanford University
- The Story of Africa: African History from the Dawn of Time - British Broadcasting Corporation

News Links

ABOUT THE LOGO (designed by: Ben Visser, December 2003 Graphic Design Major)

- Sankofa (sang-ko-fah) Bird: The center of the logo features an image of the Sankofa bird, a West African symbol featuring a bird that faces forward, but simultaneously turns its head to look back. This symbolizes the importance of remembering one’s roots - in order to recapture what has been lost and thus be able to move forward.

  We should reach back and gather the best of what our past has to teach us, so that we can achieve our full potential as we move forward. Whatever we have lost, forgotten, forgone, or been stripped of, can be reclaimed, revived, preserved, and perpetuated.

- United States and Africa: In the AAMS logo, the Sankofa bird is facing toward a map of the U.S., but its head is turned backward to look at a map of the African continent.

- Meaning: The AAMS logo represents one of the most vital aspects of the AAMS program, which is the importance of remembering the historical past in order to understand and succeed in the valuable lessons that African and African American cultures teach us today.