President DiGiorgio opened his comments with a discussion of current financial situations: national, state-wide, and regional. He then referenced last year’s committee report from Roles and Rewards, where slight changes were made in the definitions of Teaching, Research/Scholarly Activity, and Service. Notably, Teaching was defined as “student intellectual development.” The definition of Scholarly Activity was slightly broadened, and Professional Stewardship replaced Service. There were also changes in recommendations with regard to rewards. There will be a meeting next week to discuss these recommendations.

Among the rewards noted to be discussed:

- Reward structure with post tenure review.
- Tuition reduction for dependents.
- Additional time for faculty to devote to new and changing faculty roles.
- Additional child care on campus.
- Provision of campus services.

President DiGiorgio spoke of recent media attention to faculty salaries state-wide, and offered his contextualization of increases and holds to faculty and staff salaries. He ended his comments by asking for questions or comments from the faculty. None were raised.

Update from the University Library Committee
Faculty Conference Meeting, October 7, 2011

There are many changes that are happening at the Library that Faculty and Staff should be aware of. Listed below are just a few of the major things that are happening. There will be a more thorough update at the Faculty Conference meeting in December.

1. Pettus archives move to the old Bookworm building--six million items in transit even as we speak! As a result, 10-20K square feet will be freed up in the library.
2. Plans for Dacus up-fit underway and it will be as Hamlet: with neither the interior nor the exterior resembling that which it was-- well, okay, sort of. Stay tuned for more information about the structural changes that are happening at the library.
3. Naming opportunities for both projects will find their way to your mailboxes soon! Keep an eye out for these special opportunities.
4. Ebrary, now has over 70,000 books. To access the Ebrary system go to http://0-site.ebrary.com.library.winthrop.edu/lib/winthrop/home.action and you can search by subject area, publisher, or book title.
5. Demand-driven acquisitions underway. This is a new innovation that allows individuals to access Ebooks on a number of different kinds of devices. This system allows access to many more titles, however the library only gets charged for the book after it is “accessed” a certain number of times.
6. Both Ebrary and Demand-driven Acquisitions system are accessible on a number of web-accessible devises.

If you have any questions or would like any more information about any of the items listed above, please feel free to contact the chair or any other member of the university library committee.

The President met with all available committee members on Thursday, August 25, 2011 to discuss both the Roles document and the Recommendations document. At this meeting the President accepted as written the Roles document endorsed by Faculty Conference on April 22, 2011. This document includes a timeline for implementation.

Highlights of the Timeline (please refer to the full timeline for details):

- December 15, 2011 (note extension requested by ALC): Academic Units submit revised Tenure and Promotion Guidelines to the Rules Committee
- 2012-2013 academic year: All Academic Units have Faculty Annual Report Forms updated for use (faculty can begin to use these as soon as they are available)
- The new guidelines and review procedures for Post-Tenure Review will be fully implemented during the 2013-2014 academic year.
- Full implementation of the new tenure and promotion guidelines will be in place by the 2014-2015 academic year.
- Faculty who began employment in the 2009-2010 or 2010-2011 or subsequent academic years will be reviewed according to the new guidelines at all stages of review (pre-tenure, tenure, promotion, and post-tenure).
- All faculty members regardless of hire date can elect to be reviewed under the new guidelines beginning in the 2012-2013 academic year.

In addition to acceptance of the Roles document as written, the President discussed each recommendation made and allowed the committee an opportunity to clarify items and ask questions. Research and exploration of many of the recommendations continues. A more complete update on these will be provided as information is gathered and shared with the committee. In general, none of the recommendations were rejected except in cases where state regulations limit the University’s ability to implement the request. For example, state regulations limit the university’s ability to provide tuition reductions for dependents of faculty and staff. However, the President expressed a willingness to work as he is able to request that these regulations be reconsidered. Finally, the committee will remain intact to allow for further discussion with the President or his designee as needed in relationship to the remaining recommendations for which research and exploration is ongoing.

Respectfully Submitted by the Committee of September 27, 2011

Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee

As formulated by the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee in Spring 2011:

Statement of Academic Freedom:
Institutions of higher education exist for the common good. In the quest for this common good the right of faculty members to academic freedom is of fundamental importance. Academic Freedom empowers faculty to discuss responsibly all relevant matters in the classroom; to explore all avenues of scholarship, research, and creative expression; and to speak or write as private citizens* without institutional discipline or restraint.

*When speaking or writing as private citizens: Members of the academy faculty will adhere to all applicable laws and University policy that mandate any actions taken by employees as private citizens be done on the employees’ personal time and without the use of state or University equipment, supplies, or facilities. Furthermore employees, when acting as private citizens, should clearly state that they are not speaking for the University.

After significant discussion and several amendments, the following statement of academic freedom was endorsed by Faculty Conference on March 11, 2011, but eventually was returned for reformulation by the university administration:

Institutions of higher education exist for the common good. In the quest for this common good, the right of faculty members to academic freedom is of fundamental importance. Academic Freedom empowers faculty to discuss responsibly all relevant matters in the classroom; to explore all avenues of scholarship, research, and creative expression; and to exercise civil liberties or civil rights as private citizens* without institutional discipline or restraint.

*When exercising civil liberties or civil rights as private citizens, members of the academy faculty will adhere to all applicable laws and University policy that mandate any actions taken by employees as private citizens be done on the employees’ personal time and without the use of state or University equipment, supplies, or facilities. Furthermore employees, when acting as private citizens, should clearly state that they are not speaking for the University.

On August 26, 2011, the Academic Freedom and Tenure Committee, at the request of the April 22, 2011, Faculty Conference, approved a reformulation:

Institutions of higher education exist for the common good. In the quest for this common good, the right of faculty members to academic freedom is of fundamental importance. Academic Freedom empowers faculty to discuss responsibly all relevant matters in the classroom; to explore all avenues of scholarship, research, and creative expression; and to speak, write, or otherwise legally express themselves as private citizens* without institutional discipline or restraint.
