NATURAL SCIENCES

The math and science programs at Winthrop are some of the region's best. You'll be in the lab conducting ground-breaking research as early as your freshman year. Much of the research done here rivals what students at larger universities have to wait until graduate school to perform. Our small class sizes and even smaller labs mean your professors will know you and your career goals, helping you tailor your program to make sure you're ready for where you're going next.

HUMANITIES AND SOCIAL SCIENCES

Strategically designed to foster an inquisitive nature and sense of purpose, our humanities and social sciences programs will help you gain knowledge, insights and skills through small classes led by exceptional faculty, exciting undergraduate research, challenging internships, and forward-thinking presentations at scholarly conferences. No matter what your major, you'll spend some time in the humanities and social sciences as part of Winthrop's general education program and come out on the other side as a more critical-thinking human being.

2nd By Education Trust in national study of success and completion rates for black students (2017)

Over the past three years at Winthrop, I have gotten an incredible amount of individual instruction and hands-on experience. Within my classes, the professors have not only been encouraging and helpful, but they have also pushed me past my comfort zone to excel.

By taking my theoretical knowledge and having to apply it in the capstone project, I was able to break into my field quickly and demonstrate a higher level of experience than expected of me (as a new college graduate).

The College of Business Administration (CBA) provides a transformative education in the heart of the Carolinas. We use high impact practices (internships, study abroad, service learning and business research) to produce career-ready graduates. We support our students by providing assistance that leads to academic and career success: cohorts, mentoring, tutoring, professional development, and business acumen. The quality of our degrees have been externally validated through national and international accreditation: AACSB, ABET, and AUPHA.

Whether you want to be a teacher or pursue a career in sport and human performance, you'll find the rigorous programs in the College of Education will make sure you're ready for what comes next. If you choose one of the teacher education programs, you'll enjoy working in school classrooms from your first year, moving from one-on-one work with K-12 students to your senior year internship serving as junior faculty members. Likewise, in sport and human performance majors, you'll benefit from state-of-the-art facilities and faculty members invested in your success.

100+ Music performances annually

The arts programs at Winthrop are incredible. The creativity, flexibility and performative aspects of an arts degree makes me especially strong, engaging, and calm in presentations to large audiences. Those transferable skills, combined with the social science expertise from my general courses, made the arts program one of the best choices I could have made.

You'll be more than a student in the College of Visual and Performing Arts. You'll be a practicing artist, whether you're working on ground-breaking art in small studio classes; with actual clients in graphic or interior design, or on live productions and performances in the world of theatre, dance or music.

No matter your discipline, Winthrop is committed to supporting and nurturing your talent and drive, and our proximity to Charlotte gives you access to our strong relationships with the arts resources of a major metropolitan area.
